IS. A BREAK IN MRS. STETSON'S FOLLOWING AT HAND?

Interpretation Put on Overbury's Recent Declaration-Refuses to Explain It Resolutions as to Miss Young's Dealings With Miss Greta M. Arthur.

The case of Arthur vs. Young, recently the decision ordering the restoration of the property: now therefore, be it Resolved, That this church, through its proval of such action on the part of any practitioner or member of the church and that suitable action be taken to publicly announce the fact."

It was said yesterday in Christian Science circles usually well informed that already one at least of Mrs. Augusta Stetson's well known followers had quit her service and aligned himself with the Boston authorities, and it appears to be true, for he did not deny it when the report was brought to his attention. According to the story, Arthur E. Overbury has been one of the practitioners of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, distinctly identified with Mrs. Stetson, although not one of those who have been censured from Boston. It appears that Mr. Overbury has now written to Boston, taking his stand openly "for Christian Science," which, being interpreted, means for the Boston authorities instead of in the entourage of Mrs. Stetson. In means for the Boston authorities instead of in the entourage of Mrs. Stetson. In some circles this is looked upon as "the beginning of a landslide" from the Stetson mountain. They regard Mr. Overbury's move as the precursor of many similar decisions on the part of the Stetson followers after the full purport of the letters published in last week's Sentinel is understood.

The trustees of the First Church have not yet declared themselves, and until they do, after finishing the investigation they are now making, there is always the chance of the Stetson forces making a strong showing or even taking a strong position in favor of their long time leader.

Mr. Overbury said last evening that he preferred that any information regarding his position or action should come through the Church authorities.

Hawk Made the Mistake of Trying to Fly Away With a Weasel Under His Wing.

CALDWELL, N. J., Oct. 18 .- A battle in which both combatants were killed was seen by a number of persons in Fairfield, near this place, yesterday. It took place in midair and was between a large hawk and a weasel. The former had picked the warrant should not be issued for his little animal up and was flying away when drained its life blood and brought it fluttering to the ground.

The hawk's talons pierced the weasel's body. through and were clinched in a death grasp when both creatures were picked up by Eben Van Dwyne, one of those who saw the fight.

Mr Van Dwyne was driving home from the Fairfield church, where he attended service yesterday morning. He saw a large hawk soaring in a circle over a pasture near the road. It paused in its flight, swooped to the ground and arose with something in its claws. The bird quickly gained an altitude of perhaps 100 feet and then appeared to be in distress. Its progress instead of being even, with regular beat of the wings, was very erratic, first up, then down. The hawk would strike under its left wing with its bill and then would claw at the same place frantically, as though to rid itself of an encumbrance. Its flight soon ended and it dropped at the roadside.

Leaving his wagon, Van Dwyne went over and picked up the hawk, and then he saw what had caused the bird's struggles and death. Other churchgoers who had also seen the fight in the air came up

Nor did when the victim turned and fastening its teeth and brought it application for the warrant was made by the girl on Friday. Her mother has been consulting Mr. Worthley in regard to the payment of a disputed bill for goods purchased on the instalment plan and her daughter accompanied her on a recent visit to the lawyer's office in the Temple Bar Building. The girl alleges that when they were leaving the office Mr. Worthley emphatically denies the charge. "I at no time," he said, 'laid hold of the girl, as is reported. Nor did charge. "I at no time," he said, "laid hold of the girl, as is reported. Nor did I kiss her. I may have stood near her at the elevator, but that was when I sig-nalled for the cage. It is all lies."
